QUEBEC'S CONFERENCE

Closing of the Session—Speeches by the Delegates.

The Work Dimly Outlined—Difficulties Encountered.

QUEBEC, Oct. 28.—The Conference concluded its work to-day. The delegates express themselves gratified with the work they have accomplished. An agreement has apparently been come to on every point submitted to them, even on the financial question, which was necessarily the most difficult of all.

Mr. Longley, in moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Mercier and his colleagues and to the citizens of Quebec for their courtesy and hospitality, said that the Conference must have a most important bearing on the future of the Dominion. The difficulties which had existed between the provinces and sectional feelings which had prevailed in the past had been largely due to the absence of frequent interchanges of opinion between them. This state of things would to a large extent be removed by the present Conference.

Mr. Norquay seconded the resolution. He said he felt sure that the result of their labors would be in future years recognized as a monument to their land. He must congratulate Mr. Mercier, the convener of the Conference, on the success that had attended its deliberations, and his only regret was that the efficiency with which they had dealt with every subject they had discussed might perhaps obviate the necessity of another such gathering for some time to come.

Mr. Mercier in responding said that five out of seven provinces which constitute the Dominion accepted their invitation. These provinces comprise 4,110,014 inhabitants out of 4,824,810, the total population of Canada inclusive of the territories (56,446), which were not invited and could not be represented, and the expression of the unanimous opinion of these five provinces upon matters of such importance as these which have been dealt with by this Conference cannot fail to carry great weight. After expressing regret that British Columbia and Prince Edward Island were not represented, he went on to say: "Even if this Conference had no other effect than that of bringing together the members of the governments of the several provinces and enabling them to compare their views on the various subjects which have been dealt with, it would still have been a success. But when in addition to this we consider the importance of the questions which have been discussed and brought to a favorable solution, it is evident that our labors will assuredly be productive of the most beneficial results as regards the future government and welfare of the provinces. After mature deliberation and friendly discussion of all the imperfections which have fettered the free working of our Constitution, we have come to an unanimous conclusion as to the defects which exist and the remedy which should be applied to them. Amongst the numerous propositions of vital importance which are comprised in the series of resolutions unanimously adopted by the Conference and signed by every one of its members, I am happy to state that the autonomy of the provinces has been most positively asserted as the real basis of our form of government and the only guarantee of its maintenance. The proposed modifications upon which we have agreed will no doubt meet the views of the intelligent portion of the community and the true friends of our common country. The very difficult question of the financial position of the provinces and their respective claims have been satisfactorily dealt with, and after a thorough and unprejudiced discussion of the matter the delegates to the Conference have come to a conclusion which, if carried out, will meet the requirements of the various provinces without detriment to the general interests of the Dominion. I am happy to state that the most prominent features of the proceedings of this Conference have been attachment to our federal institutions and loyalty to our gracious Sovereign." Mr. Mercier moved that thanks be tendered to the Hon. Mr. Mowat for the able manner in which he presided over the deliberations of the Conference.

Mr. Fielding seconded the motion and referred to the position of Nova Scotia, the people of which never assented to Confederation. While in duty bound to state the position and grievances of the people in that province which he did frankly and fully, to the Conference, he at the same time said: "We do not know at this moment what course we may feel bound to pursue in future in relation to the questions which have excited so much discussion in the past, and we do not intend to tie our hands, but I have always held and I hold now, that so long as our province is within a union it is our duty to make, not the worst of Confederation, but the best of it. In that spirit we have been ready to unite with the delegates from our sister provinces in considering matters of common interest, and to assist in securing such reforms as are necessary, not only for Nova Scotia, but for the other provinces. I feel deeply impressed with the generous spirit which has pervaded the Conference. I have not failed to urge my own views, but I hope I have been willing to consider the difficulties of other provinces as well, and I am satisfied there has been on all hands an honest desire to seek reasonable remedies for such difficulties as are recognized by all. We have only agreed to that which, all things considered, we think will improve the position of Nova Scotia, but if it shall be found that what has been agreed to is not calculated to advance our interests, we do not undertake to commit our province to it. Nevertheless we hope that in view of the generous spirit manifested at the Conference every province may find it in its interests to accept the result of this Conference as beneficial, "although it is necessary to maintain on behalf of the people of Nova Scotia, if they see fit, a separation of their province from the Dominion. One advantage of this Conference which I readily recognize is that by bringing together men of the several provinces, and having the views of each province stated with frankness and candor, we are all able to consider these questions in a better light, and to have due regard for what possibly may be considered prejudices of each."

Mr. Blair said the delegates from New Brunswick felt themselves under deep obligations to the premier of Ontario for the marked ability and courtesy with which he had presided. He was free to say that he had little expectation that the session would be so harmonious or would have resulted in an agreement upon so many points of common interest to the people of the several provinces. When the resolutions on which they had agreed had been submitted to their absent colleagues and had been approved of and made public, he was sure that it would be acknowledged that they had done a work of great importance to Canada. He would be able to tell his colleagues that in all these matters the New Brunswick delegates had succeeded in accomplishing all they had desired without injustice to any other province.

Mr. Mowat in replying said: In acknowledging the resolution I must be very brief. It gives me great pleasure to say that this conference has given me an opportunity of forming new friendships which I greatly value and which I hope to retain for the rest of my life. I appreciate the honor which the conference did me in appointing me as the chairman, and I think it my duty to say that whilst I have attended many meetings of various kinds for public purposes, including the Quebec Conference of 1864, I have never had to do with a body of men who manifested—more ability, candor, or patriotism than the members of this conference have done. I have especially observed how thoroughly every resolution has been discussed, and, at the same time, how closely to the point. I am extremely grateful for the kind way in which the resolution and speeches have referred to myself, and to the manner in which I have discharged my duties as chairman, and the little repetition there has been. In fact I cannot recall any discussions on important subjects in any public body in which there has been so little of mere talk, so little said not material. I trust that the work which we have now brought to a conclusion will prove of service to our country.

Three cheers were then given for the Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Gov.-General and the Dominion, and the delegates dispersed.

THE OLD TACTICS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—The force of the old saw "save me from my friends" has never been better exemplified than it has been through the impolitic articles which have appeared in the government organ, the Colonist, during the last couple of days, bearing on the coming Comox by-election. While that organ is attempting to belittle the opposition, it unwittingly exposes the cloven foot of the present government and tells the good people of Comox that unless they elect a member to support the present government they may expect to be punished by receiving next to nothing for their district. Now, Sir, I ask every fair-minded man resident in this province, if a government imbued with such dishonest principles ought to be retained in office for one single day? From honest men the answer will be emphatically No! Outside of the disloyal elements which go to make up the present government, their policy toward independent constituencies who dares to send a representative to the legislature who will not hold up his finger when the government commands, in itself is a sufficient reason why the present tax-increasing, incompetent clique should be dismissed from the management of the business of this province. The intelligent electors of Comox will not overlook the government through its paid organ, and I am sure will cast their votes when the time comes on the side which they believe to be in the best interests of good government. The present government party were in a position, when the Settlement Bill was before the House, to have conserved the interests of Comox. Did they do so? No! They gave the whole of the unsold land in the district to build a railway to Nanaimo without any guarantee that it would be extended to that important district. On the heels of that dishonest act they say to Comox we will cut you off with a shilling unless you send to the House some creature of ours. JUSTICE.

INCORRECT AND UNRELIABLE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR—Mr. Joseph Boscowitz must have good friends on the Colonist, or perhaps he is a good friend to himself. Twice this week special paragraphs have appeared saying that his party, including Admiral Sir M. Culme-Seymour, have been securing excellent sport at the Delta! Of course it gives the eclat so much wanted and needed to say that a plain Victoria citizen has a British admiral, who is also an English baronet, as his guest; but then both paragraphs are "inexact." The first paragraph appeared Thursday, and said the Admiral was to be with Mr. Joseph Boscowitz for five or six weeks. On the contrary the Admiral will be in England within three weeks. The night he was reported to be out hunting he was dancing at Government House. Next night he was dined by the officers of the fleet, at a farewell banquet, at Esquimalt. Last night, when the Colonist says he was "securing good sport" with Mr. Joseph Boscowitz, he was the chief guest at the ball given by Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Ward. I submit that the Colonist should make an effort to be more correct about Mr. Joseph Boscowitz and his movements. CRITIC.

Victorians Abroad.

Mr. D. Ellis and family, formerly of the Grand Pacific Hotel in this city, left Victoria a few weeks since for the east, where they intended to remain for some time. It appears the conditions there were not such as pleased Mr. Ellis, for we find by the East Side Champion of the 20th ult., published in Los Angeles, that he reached that city on the previous Wednesday with his wife and three children. On the afternoon of that day he had closed the purchase of an elegant $10,000 residence, the property of Mr. O. Embody, corner of Mozart and Sichel streets, with its rich furniture and into it moved his wife and family that night. Such is Victoria pluck and enterprise when abroad.

MORE SYMPATHY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5.—The following telegram from the local anarchists left here this morning: "A. R. Parsons and others, Cook County Jail, Chicago: California Defence Fund Association have resolved that all of you sign a paper to Governor Oglesby for commutation of sentence. We urge you to make this sacrifice for the sake of your friends and the cau e. Charles Buryman, Secretary." It has been urged upon all in sympathy with the anarchists to give financial aid to the families of the condemned men, whether they be executed or imprisoned.

A NOTED JESUIT DEAD.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 5.—Father John Bapst, the noted Jesuit, is dead. With other Jesuits he was a refugee from Europe in 1848. He was assigned to Portland, Me., and at the time of the Knownothing troubles his house was ransacked and he was stripped of his clothing, tarred, feathered and nearly beaten to death. The citizens of Portland, to partly atone for the outrage perpetrated, presented him with a gold watch, to accept which he received special permission from the Superior of the order in Rome. He was the only Jesuit priest in America who wore a gold watch.

"SINGULAR AND ROMANTIC."

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 4.—A singular and romantic story came out to-day in the course of a legal hearing before Judge Andrews in the Superior court. A motion was made to sell certain stocks belonging to the estate of Robert Sproule, late of British Columbia. Sproule was agent for a Connecticut company engaged in working a mine on the other side of the American line. He was charged with murder and the company advanced him $1800 to defend himself with, and he gave his stock to the company. He was sentenced to be hanged, and after five respites by the Canadian government, the sentence was carried into execution. It is claimed the government hanged the wrong man. (?)

ADMIRAL HEANAGE INTERVIEWED.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—The Times' Montreal special says: Admiral Heanage, the new commander-in-chief of the Pacific station, is in Montreal en route to Esquimalt, B. C., where he will take command of the station from Sir Michael Culme-Seymour, baronet. On being asked if there was any truth in the statement that he had come out in connection with the Alaskan fisheries question, Ad. Heneage denied the report, and said he had only come out to take command. He should, however, take a cruise in his flagship, that was coming out around Cape Horn, up Behring Straits, and have a look at what was going on there. So far as he could understand, no man-of-war, either British or American, was ever there, and the seizures were made by the revenue cuiters. He could not see by what right sealers were seized on the high seas, outside the three-mile territorial limit, and he would decidedly interpose if he saw a sealer interfered with outside the territorial limits.

"Did you hear that the fisheries conference was to consider the Alaskan question?"

"Yes, I saw just before I left that it would be minded. I have since heard it contradicted, but think it is true."

WILL NOT INTERFERE.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 5.—Mrs. Emily Wilson, sister of Governor Oglesby, of Illinois, who has just returned from visiting him, says: The governor is fully resolved not to interfere in the anarchists' case.

PRINTERS STRIKE.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 5.—The compositors of this city have gone out on a strike. The strike has spread to the newsboys and the papers here are badly crippled.

LEPROSY.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—The board of health has discovered that two well-developed cases of leprosy exists in this city, but owing to the obstinacy of the German physician under whose care they are they cannot be located.

INSANE ON PROHIBITION.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 2.—Rev. John C. Round, a prominent Baptist minister, and a member of the faculty of the Centennial Biblical Institute, has gone insane on the subject of temperance. Late last night detectives caught him and took him to Spring Garden asylum. Mr. Round is about 60 years of age and well known in religious circles.

COULD NOT PLEAD.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5.—When the case of Mrs. Clara Belle McDonald, charged with having attempted to murder her father-in-law, was called to-day in Judge Murphy's court, her attorney stated that the defendant was undecided as to what she should plead. She was given until Monday to answer.

A DRUNKEN CAPTAIN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—The fact is made known to-day that the loss of the propeller Vernon last Saturday with forty or more lives was owing to the captain's drunkenness. Axel Stone, the only survivor of the disaster said to-day: The captain was a drunk most of the time on Friday night, which was the night that the steamer was lost. The captain was as drunk as I ever saw him, and he kept taking drink every little while. If the captain had been sober I don't believe the vessel would have been lost, for any sober man would have turned back when he saw how badly she rolled in the big seas.

A TERRIFIC FIGHT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5.—A terrific glove contest took place at one of the athletic clubs last night between George Smith of this city and Jack Riordan of San Jose. Smith weighed 138 pounds and Riordan 148. At exactly 10:30 o'clock the men stepped into the ring. Riordan, from the call of time in the first round until the close forced the fighting. In the 8th round Smith won first blood, giving Riordan a cutting blow on the mouth. The fighting went fiercely on until the 53rd round. Riordan was credited with two knock down blows. The fight ended at the 61st round and was declared a draw. Then it became known that Smith had broken his left hand in the 21st round and his right in the 41st but never mentioned the fact.

THE ANARCHISTS.

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 5.—Two companies of the Sixth Infantry stationed here left this morning for Chicago, where they have been ordered. Their going is quite generally regarded as having some connection with the coming executions of the seven anarchists there on the 11th inst.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Among those who have signed a petition to the governor for a commutation of the anarchists sentence are C W Gouldy, Democrat leader and General Counsel of the Northwestern Railway; S P McConnell, a prominent member of the bar; S O Gregory, former President of the Iroquois Club; J K Boysen, Democratic nominee for State Attorney; Lyman Trumbull, ex-U S Senator; W E Ewing, U S District Attorney; T S Winston, ex-Minister to Persia; Judge Moran, of Appellate Court; Lyman J Gage, President of the First National Bank; Marvin Hughett, President of the Northwestern Railroad, and Judge Baker, of the Criminal Court.

CANADIAN NEWS.

"C" BATTERY COMING.

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.—The eighty single men of "C" battery left Kingston and Quebec respectively this afternoon en route for Victoria. The Quebec detachment arrived here this afternoon and were inspected by Col. Irwin, Dominion artillery inspector, the stores shipped and the men given a hearty send-off by the spectators. The Kingston men join their comrades at Renfrew. The fifteen married men with families will travel by to-morrow night's train. The second party will number 50. There are twenty children, one over 12 years, twelve between 5 and 12, and six under 5 years of age. The battery was divided in order not to delay the train en route.

POLICE COURT.

(Before Edwin Johnson, Q. C. S. M.)

At the Police Court to-day Mr. Johnson found but two cases awaiting his decision. Eliza Lawson, charged with drunkenness, was discharged.

E. Reeves, charged with riotous conduct and maliciously damaging articles in the Senate Saloon, Government street. On paying $3 costs the case was withdrawn.

Admits the Charge.

The fossilized Columbian joins in the chorus of howls against THE TIMES for the manner in which it exposed the bungling in connection with the arrival of the Parthia last Thursday morning. The pocket organ of the Hon. Provincial Secretary admits that "there was some misunderstanding—somebody blundered." After this admission we are at a loss to comprehend its vagaries on the subject extending to nearly a column. Unlike the Columbian in its defence of its rights of its own city, which have to be advocated by outside journals, THE TIMES will watch and guard the interests and rights of Victoria against intrusion or interference from any source. In this respect the Columbian will do well to take a lesson by our conduct.

A BETRAYED TRUST.

A Montreal paper thinks the people of British Columbia and Prince Edward Island, through their legislatures, will ask for a reason in explanation of their being unrepresented in the Inter-Provincial Conference. Possibly our contemporary may rightly guage the feeling of the people of both provinces, but we entertain considerable doubt about the British Columbia legislature. Unfortunately the ring influence is at present paramount in this province, and the government has a large and subservient majority, which is ready at all times to stifle inquiry, suppress debate or whitewash the administration. The absence of representatives from British Columbia was most unfortunate, but it is only another evidence of the incompetency of the men in office. They failed to grasp the situation, or if the importance of the Conference was recognized by the combination of so-called "ministers," it was deemed by them of less consequence to the province than an obsequious deference to the Ottawa Government, which for party political reasons was opposed to the Quebec meeting. As our Montreal contemporary, the Herald, points out, it was essential to each province that its voice should be heard, and that it should have something to say in the proposed changes to the constitution. To none could it be more important than to the weakest of the maritime provinces, or to the province on the Pacific whose life in the Dominion is practically only just beginning. At this moment British Columbia is at variance with the Dominion as to proprietary rights and powers in valuable lands. The interests of the Provincial Government, of the farmers, miners and others, demanded that some representative of the Province should attend the Conference, to aid in securing that which the Government and people of the Province claim as their right. Such an opportunity for strengthening itself as that afforded by the Conference could seldom occur. Prince Edward Island complains that by reason of its limited area it receives less than justice at the hands of the Dominion, and yet the Local Government rejected the hands that were held out to them, and preferred to let the cause of the Island go by default, if such should prove to be the result. If British Columbia and P. E. I. were entirely satisfied with matters as they are, they should still have been represented lest propositions inimical to them should be made and carried. And if they are not satisfied, their complaints should have been made known. By their absence they have in a measure silenced themselves. They can demur with very little grace to anything the Federal Government may do, for they will be met with the reply that they expressed their entire concurrence in the claims of Federal jurisdiction by declining to attend the Conference at which the other provinces were devising means for self protection. There has been a very serious failure of duty on the part of the governments of these two provinces, and the people should enquire as to its cause, and show their disapproval in the one practical way open to them. It has been alleged that the Premiers feared the Conference would assume an attitude hostile to Sir JOHN MACDONALD. If this is what they feared their presence might have prevented it. But that should have been a minor consideration. They are the custodians of the interests of their respective provinces, not the guardians of Sir JOHN MACDONALD'S Government. They are elected by their respective provinces and paid from their funds. They are not nominees of Sir JOHN MACDONALD nor servants of the Federal Government, to move or to be still at its bidding. If the spirit of the British Columbia and Prince Edward's Island Governments actuated all the Provincial Ministries the principle of Confederation might be abandoned. If Sir John is to rule at Victoria and Charlottetown as he does at Ottawa, and if all murmurs at his aggression are to be silenced, then the Confederation may as well be changed to a legislative union, and the smaller provinces come at once into subjection of the larger ones. It is of vital importance to such provinces as the two that have been betrayed by their respective governments that the provincial rule should be strengthened and every possible safeguard obtained against the limitations of their powers and rights. The people of British Columbia and Prince Edward Island have been gagged by their own ministers, and their interests subordinated to an unworthy fear of displeasing an autocrat.

Mr. Chamberlain explains that he meant nothing injurious to Canada or hostile to Commercial Union. He would do well to remember the first Pitt's advice to a fellow-member, "When you mean nothing, sir, you should say nothing."

WILL CONTINUE THE AGITATION.

The attitude taken by THE TIMES on the landing of mails and passengers at this port appears to have taken our morning contemporary by surprise. We have never receded from the position taken at first, viz, that it was imperative that the mails, passengers and light, or express, freight, consigned for Victoria, should be landed with as little delay as possible at this port. The feasibility of the Canadian Pacific route was on trial, and an Imperial subsidy being asked for THE TIMES' contention was that no unnecessary embargo should be placed in the way of the company demonstrating the rapidity with which the distance between Yokohama, Hongkong and Liverpool could be covered. Trips were made and a fair idea formed as to the time necessary to make the journey. This accomplished THE TIMES held that the matter of landing mails, passengers, and freight for this city, should be insisted upon. Assurances were given that the wishes of the people would be complied with and a landing hereafter made at Esquimalt. The impression of Mr. VAN HORNE and others in Montreal is that the arrangement made by Mr. FRAZAR and others, some two months since, was being faithfully carried out by the officials of the company here. This we know beyond dispute that there was much unnecessary delay and friction in connection with the arrival of the Parthia. The manner in which her mails and passengers were landed is a matter of history. The action of the officers being so directly opposite to the advices received from headquarters, in Montreal, THE TIMES, as was its bounden duty, expressed itself honestly and fearlessly on the subject. The first journal in the province to make a forecast of the possibilities of the Orient-Occidental trade, it always has taken a deep interest in the development and expansion of our trade relations with the far east. It is the policy of THE TIMES to enlighten its readers on every topic deemed to be of interest to the public. We have every faith in the vastness of the volume of trade yet to be done between the Occident and the Orient, all of which will pass through these waters, Victoria being the gateway on the ingoing and outgoing trips. We shall continue in our advocacy for a just recognition of our rights as the commercial, shipping, manufacturing, social and political metropolis of the North Pacific—demanding only that which is ours by natural and other laws. Realizing that such a position is the correct one to take, and that in doing so we are not hostile or adverse to the growth and development of other centres within the limits of our vast province, we are assured the agitation will be productive of good for this city.

We cannot drop the subject without censuring the post office authorities at Ottawa for sanctioning the manner in which the mails are made up. A change is necessary. That done, and the mail matter for this office billed direct on Victoria, as well as that for the Sound and the coast, which we are assured forms the bulk of the China-Japan mail—and landed the moment the vessel reaches Esquimalt, there will be no occasion for complaints. Until this is accomplished the agitation will not cease.

GENERALLY APPROVED.

With marked unanimity the London and provincial press commend the action of the Imperial Government in granting a subsidy to the Canadian Pacific-British Columbia-Japan-China line of steamers. Already we have quoted from the Times and other leading London journals their comments, as well as a few from the most prominent of the provincial press. The Nottingham Guardian, in its issue of the 5th ult., says the Imperial Government "have done well to consent to subsidize a line of steamers that has begun to run in connection with the Canadian Pacific line of railway from British Columbia to the east. It is unfortunately true that Canada at the present time, by increasing her tariffs, is pursuing a policy that must be inimical to the mother country, and many people would have seized upon this fact as a pretext for refusing the subsidy. But we have interests of our own to serve altogether independent of any particular phase of Canadian policy. If the Pacific Railway can be kept open all winter it will form a valuable strategic route to the East, of which some day we may be very glad to take advantage, and, therefore, we have a special interest in the prosperity of the line. But this is not all. It is now definitely discovered, as many people predicted would be the case, that the route is the quickest there is to the East. It is said that by using this route two days are saved between England and Sydney, four to five days between England and Brisbane, two days between England and Hong Kong, seven to nine days between England and Shanghai, and from seventeen to twenty days between England and Yokohama. It is needless to add that if this the experience gained during the first few weeks the steamers on the new line have been running—is confirmed, the traffic on the Canadian Pacific Railway will soon be very large, and it will ultimately be found desirable to send some at least of the mails by that route. In these days speed is nearly everything, and trade will go by those trading lines which make the best time. It would have been a great mistake, therefore, to have refused the subsidy asked for. A time may come when the route through the Canadian Dominion may make us very much less dependent than we now are upon the Suez Canal, because we can always get to India by way of the Cape of Good Hope, the old and natural route. But in any case it is desirable that we should do everything in our power to strengthen our position in the Pacific, and the success of the British Columbia steamers would probably soon be followed by the establishment of a powerful arsenal and naval station, as well as by the growth of a large commercial emporium, and it is needless to point out how immensely this would strengthen our position in the Pacific in the event of a great naval war."

PERSONAL AND POLITICAL.

Mr. Henniker Heaton, M. P., has had a considerable fortune left him by a dweller in Sydney, N. S. W., and rumor has it that one of the conditions of the legacy is that the legatee should continue to reside in Australia. If so, Canada will lose a warm friend in the Imperial House of Commons.

There are many indications of the increasing favor with which British Columbia is being regarded as a field for settlement. Here, for instance, is a communication which a correspondent of the Canadian Gazette has received from a settler in Orange County, Florida: "I should be very much obliged for any information about prospects in British Columbia. I have had three years' experience farming in Florida, and am disgusted with the place, and should like to settle under the old flag. Any pamphlets or maps you might send me would be acceptable."

A London correspondent has drawn attention to the advantages of the Canadian route to Yokohama, as experienced by him. A letter bearing the postmark of Yokohama, September 14, was delivered in London on October 17, having taken four weeks and five days on the journey, whereas, by the Suez Canal route, fully six weeks would have intervened between the despatch and arrival of the letter.

Sore Eyes

The eyes are always in sympathy with the body, and afford an excellent index of its condition. When the eyes become weak, and the lids inflamed and sore, it is an evidence that the system has become disordered by Scrofula, for which Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best known remedy.

Scrofula, which produced a painful inflammation in my eyes, caused me much suffering for a number of years. By the advice of a physician I commenced taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After using this medicine a short time I was completely

I suffered for a year with inflammation in my left eye. Three ulcers formed on the ball, depriving me of sight, and causing great pain. After trying many other remedies, to no purpose, I was finally induced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

SHILOH.

How the Men of the West Organized for Victory.

STRIKING FIRST BLOWS.

An Impartial Story of One of the Decisive Battles of the War.

CONCENTRATING AT CORINTH.

In four weeks after the evacuations of the Confederate positions in Tennessee, fragments of commands from Bowling Green, Ky., under Hardee; Columbus, Ky., under Polk, and Pensacola, Mobile and New Orleans, under Bragg, with such new levies as could be hastily raised, were united at or near Corinth and for the first time organized as an army. "It was a heterogeneous mass," says Gen. Bragg, "in which there was more enthusiasm than discipline, more capacity than knowledge and more valor than instruction. Rifles, smoothbore muskets—many of them with the old flint and steel—and shotguns of all sizes and patterns, held place in the same regiments." This force, about 40,000 of all arms, was divided into four corps, respectively commanded by Gens. Polk, Bragg, Hardee and Breckinridge, with Beauregard second in command, under Gen. Johnston. Near midnight of April 2 information was received at headquarters that Buell was advancing rapidly from Columbia to Savanna, and about the same time Gen. Cheatham, who was stationed at Bethel, some twenty miles distant, telegraphed that a large body of the enemy, which he supposed to be Gen. Lew Wallace's division, had appeared in his front with an apparent purpose to attack. Under these circumstances the Confederate commanders promptly decided to assume the aggressive, and before daylight Beauregard had drawn up the plan of march and battle, and orders were issued for a forward movement. It was intended to reach the enemy's front in time to attack on the morning of the 5th, but owing to the heavy rains that had fallen, together with the failure of one of the divisions to come up, the formation of the lines was not completed until the afternoon of that day. Although Gen. Johnston's headquarters at this moment were less than two miles from the Federal encampment, it does not appear that the near presence of his army was even suspected.

GEN. LEW WALLACE.

FACE TO FACE.

The relative positions of the two armies at this time were as follows: The Federals occupied "a continuous line from Lick creek on the left, to Owl creek, a branch of Snake creek, on the right, facing nearly south, and possibly a little west." Their first line was held by Gens. Sherman's and Prentiss' divisions, extending from a bridge on Owl creek to the Lick creek ford. Gen. Sherman's first brigade, Col. McDowell, formed the extreme right; his fourth, Col. Buckland, was west of the Shiloh church and rested on it, and his third, Col. Hildebrand, was east of the church and also rested on it. Then began the line of Prentiss' division, and afterwards, at a long interval, was posted Sherman's second brigade, Col. Stuart, in close proximity to Lick creek. About a half a mile in rear of this line was McClernand's division, somewhat between Sherman and Prentiss. Hurlbut was massed and in reserve to the rear and left of Prentiss, on the road leading to Hamburg, and a mile and a half behind Stuart. The division of C. F. Smith, now commanded by Gen. W. H. L. Wallace, was two miles to the rear and supporting the right wing of the army. The artillery was under the direct command of the division commanders. The general form of the line was that of a semi circle, with its greater arc on the left.

The Confederate forces were formed in three lines of battle. The first under command of Gen. Hardee, extended somewhat obliquely over a space of nearly three miles from Owl creek on their left to Lick creek on their right. The artillery was in the immediate rear and cavalry protected the flanks. The Second corps, under Gen. Bragg, was 500 yards to the rear of the First, and arranged in similar order. The third line was held by Polk's corps, and was deployed in columns of brigade on the left of the Pittsburg road, its front being about 800 yards to the rear of Bragg's left wing. Breckinridge's command, in rear of Bragg's right wing, occupied a position somewhat similar to that of Polk's corps behind Bragg's left wing, between the Pittsburg road and Lick creek. Polk's and Breckinridge's troops constituted the reserve, and were to be thrown forward as the exigencies required in support of the two lines of battle. The total of infantry and artillery engaged was about 36,000, and there were besides 3,080 cavalry which were chiefly used for outpost duty. The aggregate of returns make 41,158 present for duty in Grant's army at Pittsburg Landing on Sunday morning.

GEN. BRECKINRIDGE.

FIRST BLOWS.

The night of the 5th passed without alarm. Only the men on picket seemed to realize that a terrible struggle was close at hand. Even Gen. Sherman, notwithstanding the unrest that had prevailed along the front during the day, wrote to Gen. Grant: "I do not apprehend anything like an attack upon our position," and Grant on the same day dispatched Halleck: "I have scarcely the faintest idea of an attack (general one) being made upon us." Gen. Halleck himself advised Buell that he "would leave for Corinth in the beginning of the coming week."

Among the Confederates, however, all was activity. Long before the early dawn they had breakfasted and stripped for the bloody work of the day. Lines were formed and advanced and men looked into their comrades' eyes wondering whether they would meet again around the bivouac fire or lie only some loved one's memory in a dead soldier's trench. Aroused by the hum of 40,000 men waking up for battle, pickets were thrown forward from the right of Gen. Prentiss' division to ascertain the cause, a portion of the Twenty-fifth Missouri, and a little later five companies of the Twenty-first Missouri, under Col. Moore, thus having the honor of firing the first shots that rang up the curtain on the drama of Shiloh. This detachment struck a battalion of the Third Mississippi, Major Hardcastle, of Wood's brigade, Hardee's corps, and the skirmishing that ensued quickly extended along the front. The entire Confederate line, two miles in length, now moved forward, the direction being such as to bring it first in contact with the right of Prentiss and the left of Sherman. A broad gap, more than a mile in width, existed between these two points, and into this the Confederates plunged with a fury that was overpowering. Prentiss' forces fell back in confusion, leaving their camps in the hands of the enemy, and several of the regiments of Sherman's left were equally demoralized.

WAS IT A SURPRISE?

Whether all this rapid movement so soon after the sounding of the long roll along the national front, was a surprise, in a strictly military sense, is still among the many controverted questions connected with the battle. Lossing in his "History of the Civil War," says:

Many of the officers were yet slumbering; others were dressing, others were washing or cooking. Their guns were unloaded and accoutrements strewn around without order. Many of the troops were without a sufficient supply of ammunition. The first intimation that the Confederates were close upon them in force was the cry of the flying pickets pushing into camp, and the scream and crash of shells and the whistle of balls as they flew on deadly errands through the tents and the forest. It was an unexpected assault followed by the most fearful results.

Gen. Buell, in his "Shiloh Reviewed," says:

I have only to remark that each revival of the question of surprise has placed the fact in a more glaring light. The enemy was known to be at hand, but no adequate steps were taken to ascertain in what force or with what design. The call to arms blended with the crash of assault, and when the whole forest on the rising ground in front flashed with the gleam of bayonets, then Gen. Sherman, as he reports, 'became satisfied for the first time that the enemy designed a determined attack.

John S. C. Abbott says:

Officers were awakened by the crash of shot and shell through their tents, and others were never awakened, but were found dead two days after in their beds. There was no time to organize, no opportunity to rally.

Gen. Grant's biographer, Professor Coppe, testifies that "at the outset our troops were shamefully surprised and driven back."

Gen. Grant, in his memoirs, referring to Gen. Prentiss, says:

GEN. PRENTISS.

The story that he and his command were surprised and captured in their camps is without any foundation whatever. If it had been true, as currently reported at the time, and yet believed by thousands of people, that Prentiss and his division had been captured in their beds, there would not have been an all day struggle, with the loss of thousands of killed and wounded on the Confederate side. There was no hour during the day when there was not heavy firing, and generally hard fighting at some point on the line, but seldom at all points at the same time. It was a case of southern dash against northern pluck and endurance.

Gen. W. T. Sherman, in his memoirs, says:

It was publicly asserted at the north that our army was taken completely by surprise; that the rebels caught us in our tents; bayonetted the men in their beds; that Gen. Grant was drunk; that Buell's opportune arrival saved the Army of the Tennessee from utter annihilation, etc. These reports were, in a measure, sustained by the published opinions of Gens. Buell, Nelson and others, who had reached the steamboat landing from the east just before nightfall, when there was a large crowd of frightened, stampeded men who clamored and declared that our army was all destroyed and beaten. Personally I saw Gen. Grant, who with his staff visited me about 10 a. m. on the 6th, when we were desperately engaged. But we had then checked the headlong assault of the enemy and then held our ground. He told me that on his way up from Crump's landing he had ordered Lew Wallace's division to cross over Snake creek, so as to come up on my right. He also came again just before dark and described the last assault made by the rebels at the ravine near the steamboat landing, which he had repelled by a heavy battery collected under Col. J. D. Webster and other officers, and he was convinced that the battle was over for that day. He ordered me to be ready to assume the offensive in the morning, saying that as he had observed at Fort Donelson at the crisis of the battle, both sides seemed defeated, and whoever assumed the offensive was sure to win.

It is undoubtedly true that the attack on the raw troops produced a panic, which more or less infected other commands, but when the real death grapple occurred with veterans like those of Wallace, Hurlbut and McClernand, the splendid men from Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and elsewhere in the west, who had been hardened in the service, the desperate resistance that was made and the varying fortunes of the fight demonstrated that the unexpected assault was not necessarily "a walk over." The broken character of the ground, the frequently disordered lines and shifting positions of the day, make it impossible to present here more than a panoramic view of the battle.

THE BATTLE.

Staver's brigade of Hindman's division first crossed lances with that of Prentiss, while Gen. Hindman in person with Wood's brigade, struck the Fifty-third Ohio, Col. Appler, the extreme left of Sherman, which was posted on the left of Shiloh church. Cleburne's brigade attacked Buckland, and Hildebrand joining in the fray, it became a fierce blow for blow along the entire front. Though men on both sides fell like chaff, the broken ranks continued to rally until the weaker went down to stay. Hildebrand's brigade retired in disorder, but a part of Sherman's position was on a steep and bushy slope that commanded the boggy bottom or valley of Oak creek, and this was occupied by the brigade of Col. Buckland with his men from Ohio. Here occurred one of the ugliest contests of the morning. The Confederates charged by brigades, regiments and fragments of battalions. Grape, canister, shell, round shot and minie balls swept the place like a torrid simoon. Whole ranks crumbled before the pitiless pelting of the iron rain; the ground was covered with the dead and wounded, and more were falling every second. The bravest, staggered by the red hot tempest, reeled to and fro like a ship battling with a gale, but still holding on its way. Even the mangled men upon the ground, bleeding and agonized with pain, uttered their feeble words of encouragement: "Go on, boys, don't mind us—take care of the old flag!" The stern, pale faces of the survivors would turn towards the officers as if to read their fate, but no voice could be heard in such a storm, and the sword alone pointed out the path of duty. Then with teeth set, lips compressed and fiery valor at white heat, they would close up the gaping ranks and fight on. Truly, this was as somebody described it, "a valley of death," and no spectacle of sublimer courage was ever presented in any country where soldiers have stood "in the dark shadow."

M'CLERNAND'S WORK.

In this affair, the Sixth Mississippi alone lost 300 killed and wounded out of 425 men. Meanwhile, McClernand had rapidly got under arms and endeavored to support Sherman's left, but his third brigade was forced back with the fugitives from Sherman's now broken lines, with the loss of six pieces of artillery. Nor were all of the Confederates in a condition to follow. Stragglers were thronging the captured camps, decimated commands had retired from action, and the generals were busy in bringing together their scattered troops. Beauregard was in command on the Confederate left and Johnston on the right. During the forenoon a concerted movement was made on McClernand's entire front. Again, there were brave charges and counter charges, and more than once the ground was lost and regained. McDowell's brigade of Sherman's division, consisting of the Sixth Iowa, Forty-sixth Ohio, and Fortieth Illinois, battered like heroes against the enemy's extreme left, but the result was as before, a recession to the left and rear. The brigade of Col. Marsh, which included the Eleventh, Twentieth, Forty-fifth and Forty-eighth Illinois, was subjected to one of the hottest onslaughts of the day. In five minutes nearly all of the field officers were killed or wounded, together with all the horses of Burrow's battery which was posted on his center. The first brigade also retired in disorder. The third brigade, enfiladed and turned on its left flank, did the same, and its commander, Col. Raith, was mortally wounded. When the division reformed, its right still connected with Sherman while the left was protected by the ravines and impenetrable thickets that intervened between it and the division of W. H. L. Wallace. The struggle continued with varying success until late in the afternoon. At one time McClernand pushed the enemy half a mile through and beyond his camp, but the advantage was only temporary. Fresh assaults forced him still further rearward, where he received the final attack made that day on the Federal right. The resistance was gallant, obstinate and worthy of the men who made it, and when it was over they went into bivouac for the night.

Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness and Hay Fever.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever is cured in from one to three simple applications made at home. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent free on receipt of stamp, by A. H. Dixon & Son, 305 King street West, Toronto, Canada.—Christian Standard. *

Go From Home to Hear News.

A few days since the corner stone of a new school house was laid in London, O., with great eclat in the presence of several thousand school children and a large turn out of prominent citizens. In the corner stone were deposited the coins of the United Kingdom and of Canada, the name of the Governor General, and the Lieut. Governors of the several provinces. It will be news to our readers to learn that the enlightened (?) school board of London are not yet aware that His Honor Lieut. Governor Nelson now sits in the gubernatorial chair for British Columbia and not Mr. C. F. Cornwall, as is untruthfully stated in the records deposited in the corner stone of the edifice referred to. The guardians of the youth in the Forest city should come west and get posted.

On the Rocks.

The ship John A. Briggs, which has been lying at anchor in Royal Roads awaiting a tug to tow her to Departure Bay, this morning dragged her anchor and went upon the rocks at Militia Point near the lighthouse. A tug went to her assistance, and late in the afternoon efforts were still being made to get her off.

Mr. Stenhouse

Is securing fame in the east, where the press is devoting considerable attention to the gentleman and the course he has seen fit to adopt. The Toronto Globe says: "The presence of Mr. Stenhouse is urgently desired in Utah or Turkey." The London Advertiser supplements its Toronto contemporary's opinion by adding: "One would imagine that there are already enough of this Mr. Stenhouse's kind of people in Utah and Turkey. He could best benefit society by doing the Alexander Selkirk act on some desolate island."

Departure of a Popular Family.

Mr. N. Connolly, of Larkin, Connolly & Co., the noted contractors of the dry dock and the island railway, left for the east this morning. During his residence here Mr. Connolly made for himself many warm friends, who will always be pleased to hear of his success in whatever line he may be engaged in, for he is in every respect a worthy and a trusted person. The firm of which he is a member are favorites with the government, in consequence of the highly satisfactory manner in which their work is always performed. Mr. Connolly and family carry with them the best wishes of a wide circle of acquaintances, who sincerely regret their departure, but entertain the hope that at an early date we shall see them again in our midst.

Presentation Last Night.

A number of the pupils in the high school, of both sexes, presented their late teacher, Mr. J. N. Muir, last night at his residence, Church Hill, with an address expressing regret at the cause which led to his leaving the school and the city. Mr. Muir made a feeling reply in which he urged on the pupils the importance of diligence in their studies whilst attending school and the cultivation of those virtues which make the men and women of any country a noble and honored race. He would ever think of the days he spent in Victoria, and would watch with interest the career of many he now saw before him. Miss Muir, assisted by several of the pupils, treated the gathering to refreshments. After a general hand-shaking and a farewell to their late teacher the pupils left for their homes.

"No Traitors Then."

"There were no traitors then."—Colonist of this morning.

This sentence occurs in an editorial which appears in our morning contemporary. "Then" refers to several years ago, and it is not unreasonable to assume that the contrast instituted was suggested by the presence of Hon. J. H. Turner in the cabinet. Mr. Turner is a traitor to the state, and his continuance in office is a bitter pill for the editor of the Colonist, and for all honorable men, to swallow. But has Mr. Higgins purged himself of his own crime? He once thanked God that he was not an Englishman, and although every Englishman in Victoria acknowledged his gratitude for the fact, the offensive and disloyal utterance was none the less objectionable. It is generally known that Mr. Higgins is ready to step into Mr. Turner's position; hence this covert sneer at the latter's loyalty. But the pot should never call the kettle black.

Really! The Creme de la Creme.

St. Andrew's Society.

The annual meeting of the Victoria St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society was held last evening in the Society's rooms, Langley street, when the following were elected office-bearers for the ensuing year: President, Mr A J Smith; 1st vice president, Mr John Grant; 2nd vice-president, J G Geddes; treasurer, Mr D McKay; secretary, Mr D B Munro; assistant secretary, David Boyd; physician, Dr Renwick; trustees, Messrs Thos Russell, R P Rithet, A Allan, John Robertson, John Boyd and A Murray; auditors, Messrs J H Lawson and W H Mason. These will be installed into office on St. Andrew's Day. "The day" will be celebrated in the usual manner, by holding a dinner. A vote of thanks was passed to the retiring president, Capt. Irving, for his services; said resolution on motion was ordered to be embodied in the proceedings of the meeting.

Messrs. Thos. Gowrie and T. Innes were elected wardens; bard, James Deans; piper David Kennedy. The annual report and financial statement showed that the societies were in a flourishing condition. The large attendance of members is evidence that more than usual interest was manifested in the proceedings.

At the conclusion of the business many of the members adjourned to the residence of Mr. George Bishop, where his wedding nuptials were being celebrated. With that gentleman and his bride a short time was very agreeably spent.

The Past and Present.

The letters written by Mr. Melville of the St. John, N. B., Telegraph, descriptive of his trip to this coast, are now appearing in that journal. They are written in a pleasing, entertaining style, certain to prove attractive reading to the people of the provinces on the Atlantic seaboard. With Victoria Mr. Melville was vastly pleased. His stay was but a brief one, yet he took in the city pretty thoroughly as well as its environs. Referring to some familiar citizens and former residents of New Brunswick, he writes:

Few of the present generation in St. John will remember the face of Hon. John H. Gray, formerly M. P. of that county and now one of the Supreme Court judges of this province. Judge Gray bears his advancing years well. He made many inquiries after friends and hoped to be able to revisit his old home at no distant day. He is held in high esteem among the Columbians, personally and for the administration of his office. Another gentleman who came from St. John to seek his home on Vancouver Island is the postmaster here, Mr. Robert Wallace. He left New Brunswick many years since, and has been representative for this province in the House of Commons. A few years ago he was appointed to his present position. Dr. E. B. C. Hannington, formerly medical superintendent of the General Public Hospital in St. John, has also become a resident of Victoria, and is gaining a good practice. There are many maritime province men distributed throughout British Columbia, several of whom have found their way to this city. They have become attached to the place, settled down, and mean to spend the rest of their days here.

THE WATER WORKS.

Memorandum of a Conversation Between Messrs. Keefer and Hendry.

The following is a memorandum of a conversation between Mr. T. C. Keefer, C. M. G., and Mr. A. Hendry, water works engineer. It speaks for itself:

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 25th, '87.

Mr. Thos. C. Keefer, C. M. G.

DEAR SIR—As the water works engineer and the originator of one of the schemes submitted to you for the better supply of the city with water, and of which you did not approve, may I ask you to read the enclosed memorandum of a conversation held with you on the 22nd inst., and state whether the same is correct, and if not what alteration should be made in same. Trusting for an early reply, I remain, yours obediently,

ALEX. HENDRY, W. W. E.

Memorandum of a conversation between T. C. Keefer, Esq., C. E., and A. Hendry, Esq., W. W. E., City of Victoria.

Mr. Hendry—Mr. Keefer, I have taken the liberty of calling upon you for the purpose of making sure that I properly understand some parts of your report on the proposed water extension. To begin with I may tell you that I am now maintaining the water in the mains at Nesbitt's gate at an elevation of 4 feet above the level of the water in the receiver at Beaver Lake, and that being 14 feet higher than you state in your report would be required to give a sufficient quantity of water to the highest building in the high levels. Will you kindly come up and examine and see for yourself, and tell me why I cannot get a satisfactory supply to any of the high buildings there now?

Mr. Keefer—No, I cannot. You must put on more pressure and raise the water higher. I am going away on Monday.

Mr. Hendry—But you say in your report that 10 feet below the level of the source all buildings will have an ample supply.

Mr. Keefer—No, I did not. I said if more pressure was required you would have to pump.

Mr. Hendry—Will you kindly state the quantity of water that can be supplied at the highest point intended in the commissioner's report by one 16 inch and one 12 inch pipe.

Mr. Keefer—No. I have not gone into that at all.

Mr. Hendry—But you have endorsed the commissioner's report and while I say that under the conditions described in the commissioner's report the two pipes referred to can only deliver 500,000 galls. in sixteen hours, which is all that can be utilized out of the 24 hours, and the fall for both pipes is the same, namely 1½ feet per mile; the commissioner says one pipe has a fall of 22 feet per mile and the other 7 feet per mile, which he says will deliver 1,500,000 galls. in the same time; will you not state positively which is right or wrong?

Mr. Keefer—No. I am not called upon to do that. You do not seem to understand the commissioner's report, who says that if the pipes are cut at those points and flowing into air they would deliver that quantity.

Mr. Hendry—But what has that got to do with the question? If the 12-inch pipe is cut on Douglas street and flowing into a well, and the 16 inch doing the same at the 150 foot level, how is the city to be supplied from those points?

Mr. Keefer—I have nothing to do with that; let your city authorities fight that out.

Mr. Hendry—And what about filterage for the 16-inch pipe?

Mr. Keefer—That is another question you will have to fight out among yourselves. All that I say is that the thickly populated part of the city will get a better supply than you can give by the reservoir system.

Mr. Hendry—While I appeared to have satisfied you that by the Reservoir System we could, in less than one minute after a fire alarm was sounded, turn on the water from the High Service tank, and have a pressure due to a head of 224 feet above high watermark, and in less than 15 minutes have steam up and be ready to send at least 1,000,000 gallons to any part of the city at any required pressure, and that, without putting any undue pressure on any part of the city mains; why do you ignore that and say that the low Service Reservoir having an elevation of 134 feet and having a loss of head of 30 feet during the day, and 91 feet during the night and that alone was enough to condemn the Reservoir System; and how can you endorse that statement which says that even in case of any accident to the mains the water contained in them would be ample protection in case of fire?

Mr. Keefer—I said that a steam pump would be required for fire protection. The Commissioner's report only says that that quantity of water would be in the mains in connection with Elk Lake.

Mr. Hendry—But could it be drawn and used for that purpose?

Mr. Keefer—Oh! I don't know that; all that I say is that I believe another main is a step in the right direction; it will be wanted some time and if the city wants more water or filters or any more pressure the people must be prepared to pay for them.

Mr. Hendry—One more and I have done. After I had explained to you that for some years to come the 100,000 gallons delivered into the High Service Reservoir every 24 hours (I also gave you a high estimate of the population above Cook street or the 89 feet level, namely 800) would give a supply even at your estimate of 100 gallons per head to 1000 population, but it will be some years before that district will be found to contain that number, why do you say that the dwellings above the 89 feet level will be worse off than they are at present.

Mr. Keefer—Oh! I did not give that matter much consideration.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 29th, 1887.

Mr. Hendry, Engineer Victoria Water Works, Victoria:—DEAR SIR:—Mr. Thos. C. Keefer, C. M. G., who left today for Ottawa, requested me to write you that he had received yours of 25th inst., and statement annexed, in which you wish him "to say whether that statement is correct, and if not what alterations should be made." He wishes me to inform you that the statement is not correct, and he does not think it necessary to say anything further in the matter. I am, dear sir,

Yours truly,
J. W. MCFARLAND.
